NUTS AND TOMATOES.

As a Steady Diet Cured Paralysis and Bright's Disease.

Peter Johnson, of 1012 Washington avenue South, has had nothing to eat but a handful of nuts and a raw tomato a day for nine months. He is a living example of the so-called fasting fad for foolish persons.

Johnson had partial paralysis of the left side a year ago, he was the victim of Bright's disease, weighed 240 pounds, suffered from asthma, and was informed by his medical advisers that he could not live more than a month or two.

Johnson fasted nearly forty days when he began his "cure." Then as he tells the story:

I ate half a tomato a day for a week, and then increased to a whole tomato. After a while I added a half pound of mixed nuts. Three weeks from the time I began eating I was told to eat more by degrees, but never to overfeed. I shall never take a chance.

The tomato and the nuts, with plenty of water keep me in splendid condition. I am as sound as the day I was born. I can do four times the day's work I used to do.

What is Life.
In the last analysis nobody knows but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living, overeating, irregular hours, constipation, headache or liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly adjust this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at all drug stores.

How a Bashful Young Man Lost His Best.

The following is told on a young man of Marietta who called to spend the evening with his best girl in Frenchburg not long since. As it was getting late and threatening rain the young lady's father prevailed upon him to remain over night and he very reluctantly accepted.

He was a very bashful young man, and the next morning when seated at the table, he was very nervous and agitated. He sat opposite a mirror and discovered that he had forgotten to comb his hair. Then he dropped his fork on the floor, and as he stopped to pick it up he upset his coffee. Matters went on from bad to worse, until the young man finally quit eating and put his hands under the table. The loose end of the table cloth was lying in his lap, and when he touched it he turned pale. He thought it was his shirt, and that in his nervous excitement while dressing he had forgotten to put the garment in his trousers. That accounted for his embarrassment. There was no time to lose. He hurriedly stuffed the supposed shirt inside his trousers. Two minutes later when the family arose from the table there was a crash. The dishes lay in a broken mass on the floor. The young man pulled three feet of table cloth out of his pants and fled through the door. He is now in hiding, and the girl is on the lookout for a less bashful lover.

VOTE FOR IT.

Mr. W. C. Nones' Advice to Farmers and Country Merchants on Constitutional Amendment

The Executive Committee of the State Commercial Convention, which is advocating the adoption of the amendment to the State constitution permitting cities to fix their own methods of taxation, is sending out the following statement from Mr. W. C. Nones, President of the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, of this city.

"Farmers and country merchants of Kentucky, don't make the mistake of thinking the adoption of this amendment of the constitution will not beneficially effect you.

If you want existing factories in our towns and cities to grow, so as to give employment to more men; if you want more consumers for your farm products; and more buyers at your counters if you want lower interest rates when you borrow money if you want to lessen your State and county taxes; in a word, if you want as much prosperity throughout the length and breadth of our grand old Commonwealth as prevails in other States, then vote for the amendment, and get your neighbors to vote for it.

The beneficial effects which will follow the adoption of the amendment are so vast that they can hardly be estimated. The evil that will result, if by any chance the amendment should fail of adoption, will be disastrous in the extreme to the best interests of the State."

Battleship Kentucky In Colors

The Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway has just had completed for distribution a large order of pictures of the Battleship Kentucky, which is a work of art and should be in every Kentucky home. The picture is reproduced from a very fine, large, copyrighted photograph by Mr. Enrique Mueller, the official photographer for the United States Navy, taken as the ship is leaving New York harbor for a cruise. It is done in colors, the grey fighter slowly plowing its way through the carefully shaded green of the sea, and carrying at the top of her flagstaff, the stars and stripes in their natural red, white and blue.

It is admirably suited for farming, but as it is gotten out on heavy, five-penny enameled cardboard, it will prove an ornament to any home without framing. Six cents in postage sent to L. J. Irwin G. P. A. of the popular Henderson Route, at Louisville, Ky., will bring this beautiful picture to your home.

Burned Cobs For Hogs.

Burned cobs, if you have no charcoal, mixed with some wood ashes and a very little salt kept where the hogs can get it is one of the best regulators that hogs can be given to keep them in healthy condition. As to the manner of burning these cobs, one breeder says to dig a hole in the ground five feet deep, one foot in diameter at the bottom and five feet at the top, using this hole as a charcoal pit. Into this pit place some combustible matter and ignite. To this gradually add dry corn cobs until the pit is full. After the flames have thoroughly penetrated these cobs place over the pit a sheet of iron cover so as to exclude the air. If there are any crevices around these should be covered with soil. In the course of ten or twelve hours the charcoal will be ready for use. This charcoal may be fed alone to hogs or mixed in the following way: Six bushels of corn meal, eight pounds of salt, two quarts of air-slacked lime and one bushel of wood ashes. The charcoal should be broken up fine and these substances thoroughly mixed together. One writer adds to this mixture one and one-quarter pound of copperas, which he dissolves in hot water, after ward sprinkling this over the mixture. The mixture may then be fed to hogs at certain intervals, or what is better it may be placed where the hogs may have free access to it at all times.—Indiana Farmer.

Lake Neuchatel is a kind of sportsman's paradise. A gentleman of Gletterns, in Fribourg, using the net from a boat near Chevroux the other day, drew out two trout of which one is locally reported to have weighed 29 pounds and the other 19 pounds. His total catch, besides these two monsters of the trout kind, weighed 100 pounds.

PRODUCTS OF A STATE

Are Foundations of Wealth, But Industries Are the SINews of Financial Strength.

Secretary Peyton N. Clarke Gives an Interesting Interview on the Benefits That Will Come From the Adoption of the Constitutional Amendment in November.

Himself always in the front rank when contests are waged for state development, Mr. Peyton N. Clarke of Louisville was naturally turned to the Constitutional Amendment Committee for its Secretary. He has unselfishly devoted much of his time to all propositions of this kind and is easily one of the best posted citizens of the State on the Constitutional Amendment. The following review of the benefits to accrue was furnished by him for our readers:

"You will understand, of course, that the proposed Amendment will not interfere in any manner with the present method of assessing real estate and personal property for State and county purposes. All towns and cities will continue as before to pay taxes for State and county purposes under the present law, and the proposed Amendment, if adopted, will make it possible for any town or city in the State to secure an act of the Legislature, providing that in raising revenues for strictly local purposes, towns and cities of any class may substitute for the present ad valorem system, such licenses, franchises, and excise laws, in subjecting personal property to its fair share of the expenses of such towns and cities as may take advantage of the Amendment when adopted.

"It would seem to be a perfectly fair proposition to allow the towns and cities in the State to raise their revenue for strictly local purposes in any manner they see fit, and no fair-minded person could reasonably object to allowing them this privilege, but the main object and purpose of the Amendment is of far greater moment and interest to every citizen in the State, whether he is a resident of a town or city or resides in the country districts.

"The products of a State are its foundation of wealth, but its industries are the sinews of its financial strength. Without industries, which afford markets, in proximity to the products, the producers are badly handicapped, and it is compelled to send their products to distant markets, where there is greater competition and increased expenses, as well as numerous losses. It is perfectly plain that the producer must suffer.

"Now, in order to secure more industries, which means more employment and more mouths to feed, we must encourage the establishment of new enterprises, and at the same time, by increasing the capacity of those already established, secure an ample home market for our home products.

"Other States have seen the wisdom of this policy and Kentuckians should not be allowed to lag behind them. Our geographical position and enormous undeveloped wealth should enable us to occupy a place in the front ranks of industrial development and the future welfare and prosperity of the State will be secured in a great measure by the adoption of the Constitutional amendment. Manufacturers and other industries cannot be induced to locate in Kentucky unless there are such inducements as are offered by the same inducements as are offered by other States with which we have to compete. Therefore, in order to secure the benefits, our position and advantages, we must be able to offer the same inducements as are offered by other States.

"While the proposed Amendment will not change in any manner the present method of assessing real estate for State and county taxes, it must not be concluded that it will not greatly benefit the entire State.

"It is confidently believed that the new law will enable the assessors to disclose a vast amount of property not at present in reach of the assessors, and if this result should follow, there would be an opportunity for an immediate and radical reduction in the tax rate for State and county purposes by which every taxpayer in the State would be directly benefited. The main advantage would be in the inducement to new industries to locate in our midst, new capital to seek investment in our farms, mines and rich timber lands, and by thus increasing our wealth and importance the result would invariably follow of a reduction in the tax rate. It is a very simple proposition that the more property to be taxed, the lower the rate necessary to secure the same revenue.

"A recent change in the Kentucky incorporation law has kept vast sums of money in our State which before the change referred to, went to other States, and the numerous enterprises now being incorporated in Kentucky will continue to add to its revenues for all time to come, and if anyone has been damaged in any way by the change there has been no discovery of the fact.

"If Kentucky could gain so much by a simple change in the statutes, why should she not gain a great deal more by a change in the revenue law as proposed in the Amendment to be voted on in November?

"This is a grave proposition and deserves the most intelligent thought and action of our citizens."

Only one sovereign has exceeded the number of visits made by Edward VII. to the present structure, Queen Anne paying no fewer than seven to commemorate victories over Frances and Spain.
